DESCRIPTIONS

A. Joe and Jessica Moore

55 Pepper Dr.

We have 2 hens: a barred rock and rhode island red and 9 chicks: 2 brahmas, 2 speckled sussex, a partridge rock, a golden comet, and 3 araucanas. We built our coop and started keeping chickens last spring. Jessica had chickens growing up and loved it so we decided to start our own little flock here in Meadowthorpe.

B. Travis Robinson

425 Johnson Ave.

The Robinson coop is adaptive reuse at its finest. Utilizing the bottom portion of an existing outdoor playset, they replaced the sandy first story (otherwise known as the neighborhood litter box) with a cozy den for eight chickens. An annex coop is adjacent and houses chickens being integrated into the main flock. When Mr. Robinson couldn't find high quality organic chicken feed in town he decided to take matters into his own hands and started Floyd's Feeds. He now sells the highest quality Countryside brand of organic poultry ration with the mantra "You Are What They Eat" to recognize the importance of serving high quality feed to your flock. He is working to expand his offerings beyond chicken feed and in partnership with CLUCK and Seedleaf, he will start offering organically raised pullets and laying hens this summer. He plans to open Floyd's Farm & Home, an urban farm supply store in early 2016.

C. Kim Glenney

1409 Richmond Rd.

This coop is at 1409 Richmond Rd just across from the Ashland Estate. The coop is an Amish made "movable style" coop that houses 8 Buff Orpingtons. They live in an enclosed run in the backyard. Kim is also raising 12 chicks that she has in a homemade brooder on the screened porch. When attending this site on the tour, please park on Preston or Bassett Av.

The coop itself measures 4' deep x 8' long x 4' tall. The run is 8' x 20' with a sand base. I have 15 chickens in this coop. Four Buff Orpingtons, two Black Jersey Giants, three Barred Rocks, two Ameracuanas, two Polish Crested and two Delaware/White Rock crosses. The ages range from almost four years old to just over a year old. I have three Amberlink chicks that haven't been introduced yet as they are too young. (They will go out in the coop once the weather is consistently warm enough. I have a small "annex" coop which is attached to the run.)

DESCRIPTIONS

E. Susan Buhrow 3434 Fleetwood Dr.

This coop is at 3434 Fleetwood Dr. in the Landsdowne Merrick area. The chicken area is made up of a hand built coop with attached fully enclosed run and a smaller enclosed area for younger birds made out of an old rain barrel and set on top of a raised garden bed. There are 4 hens, (Red Stars and Easter Eggers), and 6 younger pullets (Black Australorps). This is a great example of a coop in a smaller space.

I have six hens: two barred rocks, two silver laced Wyandotte, and two buff Orpington's. They all have names and we raised four of them from chicks and adopted two others from friends of ours. We love our girls and they typically lay almost an egg every day for us during the spring summer and fall! We got interested in back your chickens by attending one of the clock tours a few years ago. I wrote a letter to our homeowners association requesting a variance to our homeowners association laws that restricted us from having poultry. They approved it and now I am the happy mother hen of our little flock! We house our flock in a henhouse from triple braided farm products (in Ohio) with an attached run made from our children's recycled wooden swing set. I will send you a photo.

G. Jason & Brittney Goodpaster 3152 Dale Hallow Dr.

This family keeps 9 adult hens (Wyandottes, Cochins, Austroplorps, and others) and has just integrated younger birds into the flock (Salmon Faverolle, Welsummer, Speckled Sussex, Rhode Island Red, and others). The coop is built by hand and is a great example of a larger backyard flock set up with a large coop inside a fully enclosed run.
